Trumbull Services LLC Announces Release of Web-Enabled Subsource<sup>sm</sup> Subrogation Software

Tampa FL, November 11, 2002 – Trumbull Services, LLC, a leading provider of outsourcing and technology services to the property and casualty insurance industry, introduced the release of their latest version of Subsource<sup>sm</sup> Subrogation Software at the National Association of Subrogation Professionals (NASP) 2002 Conference. Subsource<sup>sm</sup>, formerly named Matador<sup>sm</sup> Subrogation Software, now offers the additional benefit of being web enabled, providing clients even greater improvements in productivity and further increasing handler functionality. Other enhancements include ease of implementation and integration using XML, improved flexibility, streamlined communications, and expanded management reporting.

Trumbull's Subsource<sup>sm</sup> is a powerful combination of workflow, strategies and data that is accessed through a suite of account management tools to provide a total solution to the claim subrogation process. The software streamlines the workflow process enabling insurance companies, third party administrators and other claim payers not only to increase their recoveries, but also reduce the time and effort involved in the process. Subsource<sup>sm</sup> has a proven track record with existing clients realizing reduced file lifecycles, increased recoveries and reduced allocated expenses as a percentage of paid losses, as well as increased specialist productivity. Subsource<sup>sm</sup> is offered on an application service provider (ASP) basis to give organizations the fastest, most convenient and most cost-effective way to conduct business.

"Subrogation is an area that has a significant financial impact on a company's results, but has been largely untapped from a technology perspective," comments Stephen Holcomb, President of Trumbull. "Subsource<sup>sm</sup> fills that gap and gives property and casualty claims professionals an important tool in maximizing their loss recovery efforts.
